Zee TV's upcoming shows to make viewers look at life through a fresh lens

Mumbai, ZeeTV has been a trendsetter in shaping television content over the past three decades. After introducing audiences to several relatable characters who have emerged as the country's most sought-after dinner-table companions and having touched upon a range of subjects close to the hearts of Indian audiences, the channel is all set to introduce two inspiring narratives that are bound to make viewers look at life from a fresh perspective. While Rishton ka Manjha, produced by Tent Cinema, will instil a fresh burst of positivity via its optimistic lead protagonist with a 'never say die' attitude - Diya, the next show Meet, produced by Shashi Sumeet Productions, is all set to raise pertinent questions about the roles set aside for the sexes in every Indian household and build a strong case against gender discrimination. The two shows are set to premiere on 23rd August and slated to air every Monday to Saturday, at 7 pm and 7.30 pm respectively.

Stirring optimism amongst viewers, Rishton Ka Manjha will explore the intense love story of Diya and Arjun who, despite being players of the same sport, share very contrasting outlooks towards life.

Zee TV Business Head Aparna Bhoale said, "Our 7 to 8 PM slot now packs in twice the excitement for our viewers with two new stories that will not only entertain but inspire and spread positivity amongst our viewers."

Commenting on Meet's premise, producers Shashi and Sumeet Mittal said, "While there are certain shows that entertain audiences, there are some that manage to make them sit up and think about life, question their mindsets and hope to bring about a positive change over a period of time. Shagun Pandey who will play the lead opposite Meet said, "As a show, Meet is a concept that holds the potential to break archaic patterns of our society when it comes to gendered division of responsibilities. I am personally honored to be a part of such a show. Moreover, I am also thrilled to return for yet another project with Zee TV and truly hope that all the viewers and my fans will support me and my team in this new journey."

Remove PASA sword hanging over traders

Ahmedabad, The Gujarat high court on Wednesday said that the state government should not keep the sword of PASA hanging over traders on issues pertaining to GST when the economy is trying to regain momentum following the Covid-19 situation.

Justice Paresh Upadhyay also ordered the government to restrain itself from taking stringent action like detention under PASA in GST cases.

The case involved three traders -- Amitkumar Patel, Sanjay P Patel and Sanjaykumar M Patel -- who have been charged under Section 132 of the GST Act and criminal conspiracy for alleged multi-state scam. The case against them is pending in a local court. They feared invocation of PASA and moved the HC for protection.

The state government told the court that one of them could be detained under PASA. The government also submitted that a proposal is being contemplated to detain them under PASA, but when the decision would be taken was not certain.

This led the HC to ask the state finance department whether such a sword should be kept hanging on the trader community. The government did not respond to this query and instead the state's GST department said that there was no proposal made to detain them under PASA so far. The HC took strong exception to the use of words "so far" and observed, "Citizens cannot be left in the lurch like this. When the state on the whole and the economy in particular is trying to regain the momentum post-Covid, such hanging sword situation cannot be permitted to continue."

The court further said, "In facts like this, the state authorities cannot be permitted to resort to stringent provisions like detention under the PASA against the petitioners. The state is restrained from resorting to the said option against the petitioners in these cases."
